This novel 55 kDa protein is encoded by an open reading frame a Mycobacterium tuberulosis DNA fragment (see AAT93610) contain polymorphic GC-rich sequences. Its amino acid sequence shows a high proline content, but there is no homology to any known proline-rich antigens of mycobacteria. Novel M. tuberculosis

Novel M. tuberculosis proteins (see AAW31851-57) are claimed. These can be produced as recombinant proteins, especially in bacterial, yeast, fungal or higher eukaryote host cells, and used for diagnosing tuberculosis and other mycobacterial infections in humans or animals. The claimed proteins can also be used for epidemiological studies, for monitoring vaccination, and for the development of vaccines and Protein 608 was identified using the method of the invention CC after subjecting rat osteoblasts to mechanical stress. Expression of the CC defendance of the protein for the CC defendance of the specification describes a method for the CC defendance of genes responsive to a specific mechanical stress. The CC method comprises applying the mechanical stress to an organism (tissue CC or cells comprising bone cells), isolating the specific cellular comprising bone cells), isolating the specific cellular companism (the method is used to identify genes and extracting mRNA from them, and differentially analysing the GC genes whose expression is responsive to a specific stress. The identified disease state. The risk determination methods are used for testing a controlling a physiological or the method of the invention, are used for treating or controlling a physiological or disease state (specially osteoporosis or the methods of the invention, are used for treating, preventing or controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or its symptoms or other factors causing or contributing to osteoporosis or controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or its symptoms or other conditions involved in mechanical stress or its bone development.

The present invention relates to novel single exon nucleic acid probes (see AAI00010-AAI10067). The present sequence is a peptide encoded by one such probe. The probes are useful for measuring human gene expression in nucleic acid expressed in the human breast. The probes at useful for predicting, diagnosing, grading, staging, monitoring and prognosing diseases of the human breast, particularly those diseases with polygenic infiammatory diseases include: breast cancer, disorders of development, breast diseases of the breast, fibrocystic changes, proliferative, breast diseases and non-carcinoma tumours.

by protein-protein interactions between domains designated dockerins can and cohesins, which are found on the catalytic and scaffold subunits can and cohesins, which are found on the catalytic and scaffold subunits can compare in the callulosome degrading compositively. An example of such a complex is the cellulosome degrading compositively. An example of such a complex is the cellulosome. This complex from Clostridium thermocellum, known as the cellulosome. Compositively complex comprises around 15 proteins including endoglucanases, which complex complex comprises around 15 protein designated the cellulosome compositively complex comprises a protein designated the cellulosome compositively co

This sequence represents the human megakaryocytopoientin (MPO) protein. This sequence was purified using a carrier which can couple wheat germ agglutinin and heparin to separate MPO. Fragments of this sequence (see C AAR80039 and AAR80040) were used to produce the amplification primers can then be used as probes to screen human cDNA libraries for MPO cDNA. CC transform cells to produce MPO. The MPO sequence is capable of promoting colony formation of megakaryocytes, enlarging the size of megakaryocytes and stimulating the proliferation of multipotential stem cells. The CC and stimulating the proliferation of multipotential stem cells. The CC serums of patients with aplastic anaemia, and from animal blood or urine cc by radiation exposing the animals to induce aplastic anaemia.

the polynucleotides (II) that encode them: (I) have cytostatic activity. (I) and (II) can be used in gene therapy and vaccine production. (I) and CC associated with inappropriate colon tumour associated protein (TCAP) ce expression, such as colonic cancer. For example, (I) and (II) may be used to treat disorders associated with decreased expression by ce expression, such as colonic cancer. For example, (I) and (II) may be rectivitying mutations or deletions in a patient's genome that affect the patients own production of them. Additionally, (II) may be used to produce the TCAP proteins, by inserting the nucleic acids into a host complementary sequences may also be used as DNA probes in diagnostic complementary sequences may also be used as DNA probes in diagnostic complements the presence of similar nucleic acids in samples, and continued the presence of similar nucleic acids in samples, and continued the patients may be in need of restorative therapy. (I) may be used as antigens in the production of antibodies against TCAPs and in assays to identify modulators of TCAP expression and activity. The anti-(I) antibodies may also be used to down regulate cas diagnostic agents for detecting the presence of TCAPs and activity. The anti-(I) antibodies may also be used to down regulate used to applicate the presence of the presence of TCAPs and activity. The anti-(I) antibodies may also be used to down regulate the presence of TCAPs and presence of TCAPs in samples.

The invention relates to a method of treating osteoarthritis via the cadministration of a composition comprising the camptodactyly-arthropathy-coxa vara-pericarditis (CACP) protein, or portions of the CACP protein. CC of the invention may further comprise a local anaesthetic. The composition cc of the invention may be administered via intra-articular or intravenous of injection. The human CACP protein is identified in the invention as cc injection. The human CACP protein is identified in the invention as cc period (MSF) is located on chromosome 1925-31, and mutations in cc CACP protein (MSF) is located on chromosome 1925-31, and mutations in cc period (MSF) is located on chromosome 1925-31, and mutations in cc protein (MSF) is located on chromosome 1925-31, and mutations in cc protein (MSF) is located on chromosome 1925-31, and mutations in carbinate vidence of inflammation. CACP protein (MSF) cc phyperplasia without evidence of inflammation. CACP protein (MSF) cc phyperplasia without evidence of inflammation. CACP protein (MSF) cc applied to reduce the symptoms of osteoarthritis. The composition may be considered to the symptoms of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, carbinate tissue and carbinate tissue and cots as a synovium lubricant, and can be used to lubricate tissue and cots as a synovium lubricant of osteoarthritis. The composition may be considered to the symptoms of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, carbinate vidence cots of range of movement or joint damage). The present sequence cots protein (x20)

Novel tribonectin polypeptide useful as lubricant for treating related to the sequence of the control of the formative splicing of the human MSF (megakaryocyte stimulating factor) of a motif having at least one o-linked oligosaccharide control control faving at least 50% identity to the sequence KEPAPT (MAR29774). The invention also relates to a nucleic acid encoding a human tribonectin for inhibiting tissue adhesion formation; and a method control for diagnosing osteoarthritis or a predisposition to osteoarthritis by continuant, wherein an increased amount of MSF compared to a control contendant, wherein an increased amount of MSF compared to a control contendant of osteoarthritis. The tribonectin and DNA encoding it are useful in the manual, wherein an increased amount of MSF compared to a control contendant of indicates the presence of or predisposition to osteoarthritis. The tribonectin and DNA encoding it are useful in the manual, one of the surfaces is a membrane, foam, gel or fibre, is cused of indicates the presence of or predisposition to obtain the indicates the presence of or predisposition to obtain a hological sample of a control contendant of indicates the presence of or predisposition to developing contendant of indicates the presence of or predisposition to developing contendant of indicates the presence of or predisposition to obtain the indicates the presence of or predisposition to obtain the indicates of the surface of the surfaces of the surfaces such as the injured of the surfaces is pericardial tissue. DNA encoding a substantial portion of a human MSF-derived tribonectin. The present sequence represents sequence of the surfaces is pericardial tissue. DNA encoding a substantial portion of a human MSF-derived tribonectin.

These were derived from expressed sequence tags (ESTs) urchin and tomato. These were derived from expressed sequence tags from the organism of interest. They can be used in diagnostics, forensics, gene mapping, identification of mutations, to assess biodiversity and for nutritional purposes. The present sequence is a protein of the impaction.

The invention relates to a human tribonectin which is a product of alternative splicing of the human MSF (megakaryocyte stimulating factor) gene. The tribonectin has at least one O-linked oligosaccharide lubricating molety and has a polypeptide sequence comprising 1-76 repeats of a motif having at least 50% identity to the sequence KEPAPTT (AAB29774). The invention also relates to a nucleic acid encoding a cc numan tribonectin for inhibiting tissue adhesion formation; and a method cc of diagnosing osteoarthritis or a predisposition to osteoarthritis by cc mammal, wherein an increased amount of MSF compared to a control cc indicates the presence of or predisposition to developing cc osteoarthritis. The tribonectin and DNA encoding it are useful in the cc treatment of osteoarthritis, where they may be used for lubricating cc mammalian joints, such as articulating joints of humans, dogs or horses. The tribonectin, when formalisted as a membrane, foam, gel or fibre, is cuseful for inhibiting adhesion between two surfaces such as the injured or trauma, or an artificial device e.g., an orthopaedic implant. In tribonectin may be used in gene therapy. The present sequence represents thuman MSF.

                                  The invention relates to a method of treating osteoarthritis via the CC administration of a composition comprising the camptodactyly-arthropathy-CC administration of a composition comprising the camptodactyly-arthropathy-CC coxa vara-pericarditis (CACP) protein, or portions of the CACP protein. CC rhe composition may further comprise a local anaesthetic. The composition of the invention may be administered via intra-articular or intravenous conjection. The human CACP protein is identified in the invention as conjection of the invention as conjection of the symbol of the invention as conjection of the invention as in conjection of the invention of interventions in the invention of camptodactyly-cc arthropathy-coxa vara-pericarditis, in which patients have synovial conjection without evidence of inflammation. CACP protein (MSF) conjection in the treatment of osteoarthritis. The composition may be conjected to reduce the symptoms of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, conjection of conjection of the symptoms of osteoarthritis (e.g., joint pain, conjection). The present sequence is not given in its entirety in figure 4 of the specification, although a GenBank accession number was given. This composition may be specification, although a GenBank accession number was given. This

The sequence given is a full length translation from the megakaryocyte CC stimulating factor (MSF) precursor. The sequence covered by exons II, CC sequence is modified by the addition of an N-terminal sequence encoding CC terminating codon following exon IV. The cDNA sequence given contains CC (meg-CSF). Exon I contains the initiating methionine proceeding exon II and a CC (meg-CSF). Exon I contains the initiating methionine, and encodes a concoding the original meg-CSF includes exons II-IV and is thought to colory stimulating factor CC classical mammalian protein secretion signal sequence. The sequence CC primary transcript of this gene may be cleaved in different ways to CC yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different MSF protein. Exons CC are also implicated in the stability, folding and processing of the colory signal sequence of implicated in the stability, folding and processing of the Synergy of MSF with other cytokines. Exons V - XII are believed to be sequences which direct proteolytic cleavage, adhesion, organisation of the seculular matrix or extracellular matrix processing. Both naturally couring and top-reason may be characterised by carlous combinations of alternatively spliced exons from this sequence, members of the exons spliced together in differing orders to form different colors.

No. is the number of results predicted by chance to have a score greater than or equal to the score of the result being printed, and is derived by analysis of the total score distribution.

CC factor, ie. one or more of these exons may contain sequences which CC direct proteolytic cleavage, adhesion, organisation of the cellular CC matrix or extracellular matrix processing. Both naturally occurring CC and non-naturally occurring MSF's may be characterised by various CC combinations of alternatively spliced exons from this sequence, with CC the exons spliced together in differing orders to form different XX sequence 111 AA;

Exon I contains the initiating methionine, and encodes a classical mammalian protein secretion signal sequence. The sequence encoding the original meg-CSF includes exons II-IV and is thought to terminate in the region between amino acid residues 134 - 147. The primary transcript of this gene may be cleaved in different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different MSF protein. Exons V and VI are thought to be encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding a different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encoding the different ways to yield a family of mRNA's each encodi

Novel M. tuberculosis proteins (see AAW31851-57) are claimed. These can be produced as recombinant proteins, especially in bacterial, yeast, fungal or higher eukaryote host cells, and used for diagnosing tuberculosis and other mycobacterial infections in humans or animals. The claimed proteins can also be used for epidemiological studies, for monitoring vaccination, and for the development of vaccines and

CC The present sequence is obtained from a clustral X alignment with CC protein 608. Protein 608 was identified using the method of the invention CC after subjecting rat osteoblasts to mechanical stress. Expression of the CC 608 gene was found to be upregulated by about 3-fold in cells subjected CC identification of genes responsive to a specific method for the CC identification of genes responsive to a specific mechanical stress. The CC method comprises applying the mechanical stress to an organism (tissue CC or cells comprising bone cells), isolating the specific cellular CC fractions and extracting mRNA from them, and differentially analysing the CC genes whose expression is responsive to a specific stress. The identified CC genes whose expression is responsive to a specific stress. The identified CC genes whose expression is responsive to a specific stress. The identified CC genes whose expression is responsive to a specific stress. The identified CC disease state. The risk determination methods are used for testing a cc medicament for gene therapy. These medicaments, or genes identified by CC controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or controlling a physiological or disease state (especially osteoporosis or controlling a physiological or controlling a controlling a physiologic bone density or other factors causing or contributing to osteoporosis its symptoms or other conditions involved in mechanical stress or its lack. The methods can also be used for advancing research or studies 'n 9 6
